C W SMITH, CLERK

Adopt Proper Approach When Criticizing Others

"In criticizing people, the best psychological method is what I have frequently termed the 'sandwich plan,'" Dr. George W. Crane says. "This means that we should first administer a sincere compliment to buoy up the ego or morale of our 'victim,' then tactfully slip over the meaty layer which contains our criticism. Finally, we should administer another honest compliment to take the possible sting from our criticism. Remember, too, that I used the word 'compliment,' not the word 'flattery.' A compliment is an honest statement of appreciation for a demonstrable virtue or talent that merits commendation. As such, therefore, it is an ethical as well as a sound psychological technique.

"Flattery connotes an insincere statement for a mercenary or selfish goal. Even when you find yourself face to face with the middle layer of the sandwich, you can still take some of the unpleasantness out of the criticism if you will lead into it by the 'I wonder' plan.

"Don't tell a child, 'You're a very poor reader.' Instead, say 'I wonder if you are really trying to read as well as you can, Jack, for you're an intelligent boy, and surely you know that fluent reading is the foundation for all education."

Only Municipal Weather Bureau in United States

A municipally operated weather bureau believed to be the only one in the United States, now is in its seventh year of successful operation in San Jose, Cal., the International City Managers' association has announced.

The city took over the bureau in 1933 when the U. S. weather bureau decided to close its San Jose bureau because of a reduced appropriation. The city council arranged for the federal bureau to leave its equipment and records in San Jose to be operated and maintained by the city, which also retained the government's meteorologist.

The station remains a co-operative unit in the far-flung network of the U. S. weather bureau. In return for furnishing instruments, books and supplies the government receives periodic reports and records from the city bureau, which is the only bureau in the coastal section between San Francisco and Los Angeles that collects a complete 24-hour climatological record.

The municipal station and the U. S. weather bureau co-operate also in vital to the prune and apricot growers of the Santa Clara valley, of which San Jose is the leading city. Finally, the San Jose bureau prepares daily weather charts on the basis of information broadcast by the government's San Francisco office.

Probably most important to the city are the records the bureau maintains, the association said. The data aided the city in securing the $10,000,000 aeronautical research laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

ers and WPA?

What! Do you advocate doing away with our precious luxuries and hard won freedom from long hours? No, Not at all, we wish there were even greater material progress. Our point is that our schools and our churches should take the lead in training our people to properly and profitably use the extra time science has given them. People don't have enough, of a profitable nature, to do. It's swell to have a 40-hour work week, provided the workman knows what to do with the extra time this short work period gives him. It's swell for the ladies to have vacuum cleaners and other labor and time saving devices, providing she uses the extra time and the saved energy profitably. If one is going to use the conveniences of scientific progress and the fruit of his work of our pioneer ancestors merely to provide more time for idle gossiping, reading a sex magazine or accumulating a waist line, then it is my personal opinion that we'd be better off getting up at 4 A.M. to milk the cows and plowing after dark by lantern light. Certainly, we believe the nation would be better off.

How did Hitler and Germany get so far, with so little in the way of gold and material resources? The answer is simple, WORK. How can he be defeated? By working harder than he does.

What shall be done with a superior nation and what shall be done with the material gains of the world? By and large they are being used for destruction. Despite the accumulated resources of the world. The problem is for these things to be put to constructive use.

Red Cross Relief To War Victims Reaches $16,690,000

According to information released here this week by Miss Eula May Burke, of the Appomattox Chapter of the American Red Cross, it was ascertained that at the end of the year 1940, the American Red Cross had provided relief in cash and supplies to the value of $16,690,000 to war victims in many nations.

The greater part of the relief supplies already have been distributed, although shipments now are en route to Great Britain and to China. A ship is about to be loaded for France and Spain and another for Greece. Further shipments for Finland will go forward at an early date.

Red Cross relief supplies are shipped only after clearance as to their needs with the representatives of the American Red Cross stationed there to supervise the distribution. The American Red Cross at present has its own staff members in England, France, Finland, China, Greece, Geneva and in Portugal.

Student Government

The student government of the Appomattox high school met Monday, February 10, with class representatives and presidents of the various committees present.

The purpose of the meeting was to organize a Personality Clinic. The pupils of the high school have nine topics from which to choose, with a teacher to sponsor each topic. Ballots are placed in the home for pupils to mark the topic in which he or she is most interested. The Clinic will begin in March, starting with the first Monday.

Different committees were appointed to work out plans for the clinic.

Glycerine Adds Luster To 'Unfinished' Furniture

A new and effective way to treat unfinished wood furniture is to give it a special finish that brings out all the natural beauty of the grain. This is accomplished by dipping a clean cloth in glycerine and rubbing the wood until as much is absorbed as possible. Next, go over the surfaces with linseed oil and remove the excess with a clean cloth. The result is a soft, mellow finish, a rich warm glow that is the distinguishing feature of old maple.

Glycerine is of value, too, in refinishing antique pieces. If you have been fortunate enough to unearth an antique chest or quaint old rocking chair whose beauty has been dimmed by several coats of paint, try this method of restoring it to its former charm.

Apply paint remover followed by applications of vinegar and water and then a clear water. Sandpaper until every vestige of paint has disappeared and rub thoroughly with steel wool. Next, go over the surfaces with a glycerine dipped cloth. The furniture is now ready for a coat of stain, lacquer or a linseed oil finish. The use of glycerine in this respect is valuable in preventing drying, cracking and warping and since it is widely used in the manufacture of various furniture polishes, it can be depended upon to help keep the finished piece at its best.

Melamine Drops From $40 Pound to Almost Nothing

Melamine, raw material of a new family of valuable resins used in plastics and paints, has fallen in price almost 99 per cent following intensive research, according to a report to the American Chemical society by Dr. P. P. McClellan of the research staff of the American Cyanamid company, Stamford, Conn. Two years ago melamine was listed as a rare chemical at $40 a pound, today it is 55 cents a pound.

Aviation is already relying on melamine plastics for tableware which is light, does not discolor, and is highly resistant to heat and to use, it is pointed out. Cups, saucers, and plates of melamine plastic are not stained by coffee, are free from any taste or odor, and can be dyed in light colors which do not fade. In paints, melamine resins give a porcelain-like finish which resists aging, discoloration, and heat up to 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

Melamine is derived as a principal product from cyanamide. It contains carbon, nitrogen, and hydrogen, and is a member of a class of compounds known as the triazines, to which cyanuric acid and cyanuric chloride also belong. Triazines contain three nitrogen atoms in a ring alternating, in the case of melamine, with carbon atoms.

Foundation Studies Cancer

The treatment of cancer is being studied at a foundation established at the University of Pennsylvania. The university's school of medicine, under the direction of Dr. John S. Lions Ask For Holiday Lake Development

The Appomattox Lions Club has interested itself in the development of the Appomattox and Buckingham Recreational Area, notably the development of Holiday Lake, and has contacted state authorities to seek a three fold program, namely, the improvement of the road into Holiday Lake from Route 24, the completion of the cottages and dining hall at the lake, and the speeding of REA service to the area.

The Virginia Conservation hopes to have maintenance of the 31 miles of roads in the 39,000 acre area assumed by the state highway department. Some decision may be reached on this month, the local Lions Club was advised yesterday by the Conservation Commission.

Gordon Elcan, of the State 4-H Club organization, and Randolph Odell, of the Conservation Commission, were at Holiday Lake last Friday to inspect the 24 cottages and to discuss plans to make the cottages available to 4 H Club members this summer.

The Lions Club intends to do everything possible to promote the development of the Holiday Lake area.

At the Club meeting Thursday night February 27, Charles Bernier, Hampden Sydney College, will be the guest speaker. One new member, John L. Harrison, was added to the last meeting, making three members added since the first of [illegible]

Appreciate Beauty

Never lose an opportunity of seeing anything beautiful—welcome it in every fair face, every fair sky, every fair flower and thank Him for it who is the fountain of all loveliness; and drink it simply and earnestly with all your eyes; it is a charmed draught, a cup of blessing. —Ruskin.

History Moved, Not Man

Alexander Scheffer lived from birth to death within an area of three blocks in the town of Schaffertown, Pa., and still was a resident of four different counties. He was born in Chester county, married in Lancaster county, died in Dauphin county and was buried in Lebanon county. The territory in which he lived was subdivided from 1712 to 1786, thus accounting for the changes, historical researchers said.

County S C A Federation Meeting Held Thursday

The elementary county S. C. A. Federation meeting was held Thursday, February 13, in the seventh grade room of Miss Fohra Williams at the Appomattox high school.

The meeting was opened by an address of welcome by Marian Jane Evans, of Appomattox, after which each visiting pupil told their name, school and grade.

Pamplin, Sunnwall, Spout Spring, Oakville, Vera and Appomattox schools were represented. A representative from each of these schools gave a report as to what the S. C. A. was doing in their school.

The methods of reading were discussed, after which Miss Williams showed how the teachers kept a pupil's record.

Appomattox pupils reported how they had beautified their rooms.

The group then assembled in the auditorium, where Judge Joel W. Flood gave a talk on "Crime."

After the talk, there was a ten minute recess.

After the recess officers were elected, as follows: Frances Mattox, Pamplin, president; Harry B. Stanley, Appomattox, vice president; Jack Burkley, Appomattox, secretary, treasurer; Marian Evans, Appomattox, reporter; Miss Mary Jamerson, sponsor.

The S.C.A. meeting of the district, will be held on March 14, at the Appomattox high school, when Appomattox, Campbell and Bedford, Amherst, Campbell and Appomattox counties will be represented.

The visitors were: Pamplin, Virginia Dare Almond, Iris Coleman, Essie Carson, Frances Mattox, Mary Kathryne Smith, Morton M. SCHOOL STATEMENT

The annual financial statement of the Appomattox county school board was released this week and will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Many Virginia rural counties, like Appomattox, are finding it an increasingly difficult problem to maintain all the expenditures required by state standards, and at the same time pay from county funds the entire cost of transportation of pupils. Many of these counties hope that the next session of the legislature will provide state funds to aid the counties in meeting a problem most city school boards do not have. Both the school board and the county supervisors of Appomattox county merit commendation for their yeoman efforts to "make ends meet" with the handling of available funds. Every dollar is made to give 100 cents worth of service and the standards of the county schools have constantly kept pace with those of larger and richer areas.

MARTIN—REYNOLDS

On Saturday evening, February fifteenth, at 7:30 o'clock, in the presence of a few relatives, Miss Elsanor Katie Reynolds, of Lynchburg, became the bride of Mr. Travis Russell Martin, of Appomattox.

The wedding took place in the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. R. L. Camden, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Altavista, Virginia

The bride wore navy blue with navy and white accessories and a shoulder corsage of red rosebuds.

Mrs. Martin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Reynolds of Appomattox, and a graduate of the Appomattox high school and Phillips Secretarial College.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Raymond Martin, of Appomattox.

The couple will make their home in Lynchburg.

FARM HOMES MADE MORE LIVABLE

More than 2,750 living and dining rooms in farm homes were made more livable and cheerful last year, and 2,430 bedrooms were made more comfortable, as a result of rural homemakers' interest in work they could do themselves at little cost.

In the home demonstration club work sponsored by the Virginia Agricultural Extension Division, the women followed, for the most part, a plan of concentrating on one room until that room measured up to possibilities in comfort, convenience, and appearance.

The attic is contributing a large share toward this improvement, for although much modernization goes on, discarded tables, chairs, stools, washstands, and odds and ends of all sorts are being done over by the women themselves, to come out sound and new for another lifetime of service, or for some use the original maker never dreamed of.

Slip covers have been widely used, to cover upholstery or to hide the hardness of old iron beds. Sailors find themselves beside an old butter bowl on the living room table, the irons holding up books and the bowl filled with fruit or gourds.

Color schemes have been carefully planned, dyes have been freely used, and hop sacking or burlap made into colorful table runners, old rags into handmade rugs.

Even whole sofas have been done over, inside out. The women have learned to tear one down to the bare wood and then reupholster and refinish. Painted pieces of good hardwood have had a good scrubbing and been brought back to their natural beauty.

The women who refinished nearly 18,500 pieces of furniture and otherwise modernized their homes last year, estimate that they saved through their own efforts more than $67,000.

GOIN—BROWN

Miss Eunice Martha Brown, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brown, and Frank Allen Goin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Goin, of this county, were married Monday night at the local Presbyterian manse, by the Rev. R.E. Redding.

It is being freely predicted here that in the Democratic primary this August, the ticket of:

Colgate Darden, for Governor,
William M. Tuck, for Lieutenant Governor, and Abram P. Staples, for Attorney General, will roll up an impressive plurality in Appomattox county. Local political leaders are solidly behind the candidacy of Mr. Darden, who recently resigned as Congressman from the Second (Norfolk) District in order to run for the Governorship. He is being opposed by Ashton Dovell, of Williamsburg, who is a former Speaker of the House of Delegates; and by State Senators Vivian Page, of Norfolk, and Hunsden Cary, of Richmond.

Although United States Harry Flood Byrd has indicated that he will take no part in the contest, it is deemed likely that Congressman Darden will have the backing of the "Byrd organization" forces in the primary, and for that reason he is being favored to emerge from the primary as the winner.

Mr. Tuck and Mr. Staples as yet have no opposition.

Mr. Darden will delay opening his campaign until he retires from Congress March 1, and perhaps will not begin campaigning until April. He has been invited to visit Appomattox before the August primary, and may come here for the opening day of June court.

Local Darden supporters will try to interest voters in registering and participating in the primary, so that Appomattox will have a commendably large vote.

BAPTIST CIRCLES MEET

On Wednesday, March 5th, at 2:30 at Liberty Baptist church, all Circles of the W.M.S. will meet and have a program on home missions, with Mrs. Ola Patteson in charge. The different circles and the following leaders will take part on the program: Monday, Mrs. Ola Patteson; Tuesday, Mrs. W.P. Gills; Wednesday, Mrs. Callie Moore; Thursday, Mrs. A. R. Harwood; Friday, Mrs. H. F. Jones.

MISS THROCKMORTON IN STAGE PLAY

Judge and Mrs. Joel W. Flood, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wood motored to Roanoke Monday night to attend the play, "It's Your Child," in which Miss Nan Withers Throckmorton enacted the role of Alice Peabody. Miss Throckmorton, of New York, formerly of Appomattox, is the neice of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Burke, and has been spending some time here. She attended S.F.C. at Farmville, and has been in professional dramatics about two years, and appeared in the play, "Censored" on Broadway, after attending the A. H. Wood Academy of Dramatics in New York. She played in summer stock shows at Craigsmore, N.Y., and at Rochester, N.Y. last fall, doing radio work while there.

BOWLING NEWS

One of the closest and best bowling matches ever rolled at the local Jamerson Bowling Alleys was rolled last Friday, when the Moose Motor and Auto Service teams met in league competition.
